We rely on your accurate reporting of your insurance information. If the information you provided to us is invalid or expired, you will personally be held financially responsible for the services rendered to you. You will also be held financially responsible for any associated legal fees required to collect payment.

We do our best to verify your insurance coverage and benefits; sometimes accurate information is not given. If the event your claim is denied or if a copay was to be collected, you will be financially responsible for payment.

If your plan renews or changes, please inform the office. Additionally, please contact your insurance carrier to determine whether there have been any changes in benefits for the services being provided in our office. If your insurance claim is denied, you will be financially responsible for any charges incurred.
